

Erik Johannessen is the President of Megapulse Incorporated, a firm he has been with since 1981. Megapulse Incorporated is a US firm located in North Billerica, Massachusetts and specializes in high power low frequency systems. In addition to design and manufacture of Loran Transmitters, Megapulse is the leader in the development and application of H field antenna technology for Loran. Megapulse also designed the first marine radio beacon DGPS modulator and receiver. Erik serves as Treasurer and on the Executive Committee of the International Loran Association. Prior to joining Megapulse, Erik worked at International Navigation for eight years. He has a BS from Northeastern University and an MBA from Bentley College.